French Evidently Gain All the Advantage, and If They Did It Was at Heavy Sacrifice.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, August 14.—The Havas news agency version of the official statement issued by the French minister of war in Paris at midnight in reference to the fight on the Vosges mountain between the French department of Meurthe-et-Moselle and German Lorraine, differs in some respect from that given by the Exchange Telegraph company. It says: "An entire section and not a division of the German troops surrendered with their machine guns."

The Havas version adds: "In the course of recent operations a number of spies have been court marshalled and shot, including the mayor and post master of Thann in lower Alsace. ## JANESVILLE'S BIG FAIR COMES TO CLOSE TODAY

PARADE OF FINE STOCK

Blooded Cattle and Horses Make Great Showing in Procession Before Grandstand—Clancy and Richmond Talk.

ATTENDANCE RECORD OFFICIALLY GIVEN OUT

The paid attendance record for the first three days of the Janesville fair as officially given out at the secretary's office today was as follows:

Tuesday	4,000
Wednesday	5,000
Thursday	12,000
Friday (estimated)	6,500

This was the fourth and last day of Janesville's big fair. It was unquestioned. Management, visitors and exhibitors are all enthusiastic and are already looking forward to even greater things for next year. "Just as good as the state fair and even better," "Best stock display outside of the fat stock show," "Best racing ever staged on a Wisconsin track," these are some of the remarks of praise heard on every side every day of the fair.

While today's attendance was not as large as yesterday it was estimated that there were at least seven thousand on the grounds. The race program this afternoon was the best of the week and the same of the drone performances by the unexcelled Dubsch company were offered. In addition to this there was the parade of livestock on the grandstand at two o'clock and horses and ponies will not be seen at any county fair in the state. Over a half million of prize winning horses, champion bulls, premium cows and pigs, all paraded with proud strut to the delight of the admiring crowds.

RACE PROGRAM TODAY

Today's race program was an attraction consisting of the 2:30 trot, the 2:13 pace, the three year old trot, each with large fields of classy starters.

The first race called for the 2:30 trot with a field of ten starters over the half mile track. The champion, America won the first heat with Ray Holla second. The order of the finish was: Carbon Boy, third; Famous Nutwood, fourth; Benjie, fifth; Barton, sixth; Benjie, seventh; Benjie, eighth; Benjie, ninth; Benjie, tenth. Time 2:21 1/4. Marshall Pugh was scratched.

2:13 Pace—First heat. Star-Elect won the first heat of the 2:13 pace on the mile track. Zulu Zoo was second, Duke W. fifth, Dr. Point was third, and Bonnie Oliver fifth in a field of six.

First Heat, Third Race. The first heat of the third race, in the three year old trot, over the half mile track, furnished a great deal of excitement. The field consisted of five trotters in the race. Electric Patch took the lead and crossed the line first in 2:23 1/4. The followers up were: Benjie, second; Benjie, third; Benjie, fourth; Benjie, fifth.

Non-Partisan Speak

This was another big political day at the fair with J. Clancy of Stoughton and T. M. Richmond of Madison, leaders in the home rule and taxpayers' league as the speakers.

In a brief introductory speech Charles E. Pierce called attention to the unusual situation of two men who are not candidates who are ready to talk on the political situation in this state.

"I am not here as a partisan," declared Mr. Clancy in opening his remarks. "And I am not looking for your franchise, but I am here as a citizen who is interested as you are in the vital matters of our state government."

A Slap at Altruism

"Who is a democrat? We have seen various brands designated by numerous adjectives but I know of no democrat whose democracy was ever entertained by any adjective to his democracy I am at once suspicious of that democrat and of his democracy."

A true democrat needs no qualifying adjectives. The modern democrat wants the word "progressive" attached to his democracy in order to differentiate him from the rest of his party, but I say to you that the term "progressive" is an expression of adulation and reproach. Every peasant politician has used this word in order, not to symbolize what to do when he is exalted to public office, but to gain the franchises of the people. We have voted for the reformers on one promise or another, first because they assured us they would secure lower taxes and they did not, then because of new forms of taxation. They pointed to the fact that taxes had advanced 50 per cent in ten years. We gave them a trial and taxes advanced 98 per cent in five years.

In five years they went on to review the various forms of taxation which were forced upon the Wisconsin taxpayers. First the tax on railroads and public service corporations were put forward and the levies on these concerns were screwed to the last notch while the public did not seem to realize that the shippers and ultimately the consumers paid the price. Then came the taxation on mortgages, which in fact exempted the money lender from the payment of taxes on property advanced and the progressive came back for a new lease of power with a new scheme of taxation. They proposed to tax property in transit. Then they turned and they passed the inheritance tax law. "If there is any one cause by which swollen fortunes can evaporate it is by the progressiveness of Wisconsin," charged Clancy.

"Then they wanted the income tax law, and when they got through they had exhausted every avenue of taxation and still the boys were short of money to support the shires. Have you noticed that your taxes were at least 100 per cent more in five years? You know not where. Income tax assessors chase over the country in automobiles getting track of the last dollar of our income, even to the money which your wife may earn over the wash tub. And as a result you have gotten the most magnificent tax levy in point of size which was ever imposed on the face of the earth."

Though Branch Rickey started out with the determination to build up a pennant contender with youngsters, he has recently been quoted as wanting to grab Larry Lajoie of the Naps. With every respect for Larry's erstwhile wizardry on the diamond, he cannot by any stretch of fancy be called a youngster.

Gavvy Cravath, the Phillie outfielder, thinks that Rube Marquard is a very fine pitcher. "He has such a speedy ball," says Gavvy. Which explains why Cravath thinks so well of the Rube. The harder Marquard pitches the faster and farther the ball goes when Gavvy connects. And the truth is that he has made most of his homers off the Giant twirler.

Most of the big league managers seem to prefer playing managers to bench managers. More than two-thirds of the big league teams have playing managers. Just the same the New York Giants and the Athletics seem to get along very well with bench managers.

Dave Fultz, ball players' lawyer, says that the Giants and Athletics are to be blamed for the poor attendance at ball parks this year. The fact that these two teams are walking away, so to speak, with things again this season has dampened the average fan's interest in the pennant races. There may be a little in this bunch, but not an awful lot.

The Athletics raised their world's championship banner over the park on July 15 and since that time they have enjoyed a lovely winning streak. Had they had the foresight to raise the rag the first day of the season they would probably have made a great record.

Many a major league team would like to have such a scout as Mike Kahoe of Washington. Mike after a recent trip through the bushes reports them to be all cluttered up with promising rookie material.

Golf seems to be the pastime inspiring magnanimity and brotherly esteem. There seems to be something about it that moves one to love his neighbor. Chick Evans, prominent golfer, in a recent newspaper article spends a column and a half telling what a wonderful player is Jack Neville and the next day Jack comes back with a column and three-quarters dwelling on the prowess of Chick Evans.

It sounds this way at least to the Cincinnati Enquirer:
The Umpire—Strunkarkum!
The Fans—Rabber! Oyabber!

The Umpire—Strunkarkumoo!
The Fans—Rabber! Oyabber!

The Coach—Yattaboy! Toney-takesome! Gudy!

The Umpire—Strunkarkra! Yerout!
The Fans—? 2? 1? 2? 3? X??
The Umpire—Batterup!
And so on, for nine innings.

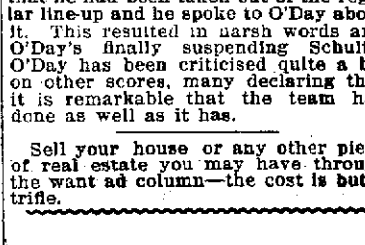

The Boston Braves executed a very interesting, not to say remarkable, record recently when they piled up a list of six shutouts in seven games against the Pittsburgh Pirates. In the six shutouts only twenty-six hits were made by the Pirates—an average of four hits to a game. Rudolph Tyler and James pitched the games, each man getting two of them and all of them performing in a most creditable manner. Rudolph gave three hits in one of his games and two in the other. James in his two shutouts gave twelve shutouts and Tyler nine. All of this is just an incident in a really remarkable winning streak the Boston bunch have enjoyed.

The Athletics have had great success against southpaws this summer, facing more of them than ever before and beating them more successfully than in any days gone by. So it Johnny McGraw is wise he will plan to use few portwheelers in the well known world series. Assuming that the Giants and Athletics take part in the same as has been their habit.

In spite of a considerable success with the Chicago Cubs, Hank O'Dea does not seem to have been very popular with his men. From the early part of the season there have been occasional squabbles, none of them so serious, but each one enough to disturb the tranquility and to bring further discontent. The latest trouble between O'Dea and Schulte appears to be more serious than the others. It is getting more mention in the papers and is being more roundly discussed. Should Schulte hop to the Feds, as he has threatened, it would bring O'Dea's emperors into a little disfavor with his employers, he trouble arose out of O'Dea's benching Schulte in favor of Kniesly, a youngster. Schulte was annoyed that he had been taken out of the regular line-up and he spoke to O'Dea about it. This resulted in harsh words and O'Dea's finally suspending Schulte. O'Dea has been criticised quite a bit on other scores, many declaring that it is remarkable that the team has done as well as it has.

It was the largest crowd that ever gathered at the Janesville race tracks that witnessed the speed program on Thursday. The weather and the fast horses entered into the spirit of the occasion with bursts of speed that resulted in neck and neck spurts on the stretches and hair-breadth finishes at the wire.

In each race there were big fields with the exception of the 2:20 trot in which there were but six starters. There were ten starters in the 2:24 trot while the 2:25 pace had to be run in two divisions, seven entered in one and nine in the other.

The 2:24 trot was the sensational race of the day requiring five heats to decide the winner. First money went to Nash, a gray gelding owned by G. M. Willard of Reedsburg, who took the last three heats after taking third and second in the first two.

Alvin W. who were first in first and second heats, respectively, were drawn at the end of the third heat which increased the competitive for second money, which was final taken by Baron Linhurst, a Platte County horse, Funston, who came a ninth in the first two heats, showed class in the final heats and captured third. Good time was made in every heat all well under the class.

Francis Hall, owned by John Boyson of Austin, Minn., had things pretty much her own way in the 2:20 trot, taking three straight heats. Ethel McKee, three straight heats, was hard pressed by Wiggan Loss and Peter Ax, the latter a Watertown horse owned by Charles Mulberg.

There were some fast and well-bunched finishes in the 2:25 pace, in which Hal S., owned by Stoneman of Milwaukee, took and kept the lead for three straight heats. Mirthful Maid and Miss Logan, the latter owned by Dr. G. C. Waule of this city, came in with G. C. Waule of this city, respectively and engaged in some lively competition throughout the race. In the second division of this race Bonnie Hal took three straight heats in the best time of the day, her best being 2:12 1/2, 12 1/2 seconds better than the class, in the second heat. Ben Beauchaire and Togo Light were engaged in fast competition for second money.

AT THE APOLLO.

The Lyric quartet, four young men with voices of unusual excellence, is proving a triumph at the Apollo this week. They offer a clean, high-class entertainment that pleases. Sauls and Rockwood are interesting in their cartooning, their best work being September Morn. Bonnie Cruz renders vocal selections that merit generous applause.

FOREIGN TRADE ALONE.

With the resumption of our foreign commerce under discussion it is wise to remember that it cannot be secured merely by the passage of the Alexander ship registry bill, although it is reasonable to hope that this will be a help. The main difficulty does not lie in deficiency of vessel room, or in exorbitant insurance rates, but in the breakdown of foreign credit, which is a phenomenon quite distinct from these other two.

The matter of shipping facilities is likely to be adjusted within a short time, irrespective of the action of congress. Where the question is one of safety, and all that stands in the way of safety are a few German cruisers scattered over the Atlantic, vessel owners will not hold back long. Insurance charges, besides being governed by the same considerations, are also influenced by the assumption of war risks by the British government upon cargoes carried in British bottoms. Belgium has taken similar action, and the United States is being urged to follow suit. If these government guarantees become general insurance rates will quickly return to normal.

But there still remains the banking part of the problem—the need of feeling sure that when we ship our commodities abroad we shall get paid for the goods when they arrive. As things now stand there is a blockade in the international exchanges. American bankers are still tied up with a lot of bills drawn against recent shipments, payment on which was refused when they reached the other side. The moratorium had by that time been declared and the free trade foreign bankers from responsibility.

As a result the banks here are not much disposed to accept commercial bills at any figure. When the offer is made to discount, shippers are charged such a stiff price as to leave them very little profit. It is this great difficulty of our exporters getting a settlement in cash that more than anything else is holding up the export trade now.

Everything depends upon the restoration of something like normal conditions in the financial markets abroad, where the foreign banks will take up again their function of accepting and cashing exchange drafts. Progress has been made within the last ten days, but the movement of recovery has a good way further to go. Meanwhile, as a substitute in a small way for the regular machinery of the exchanges, the opening of direct credits, as was done last week by the Bank of France, is being urged. Where foreign institutions announce that they have deposited a specific cash sum with American agents abroad it enables our banks to place a like credit at the disposal of these depositors for use in this country.

NOT WEST ALONE.
President Wilson has taken up the question of the unwarranted increase in the cost of food throughout the country and has advised his attorney general to make an investigation to see what can be done about it. The New York Globe handles the matter from an eastern standpoint much the same as it has been handled in the west and it is interesting to note that it comes to the same conclusions saying:

"It may not be necessary or advisable to adopt the suggestions of the Pennsylvania representatives, Messrs. Kelly and Farr, for a congressional inquiry into the advance in food prices. It is evident, however, that some agency should be employed to consider whether there is any warrant for what is going on in this direction under cover of the war."

In many lines of trade actual scarcity of goods, dependent on foreign supplies, is a natural and unavoidable sequel to stoppage of ocean shipping and arrest of foreign industry. To no very considerable extent is this true, however, of ordinary foodstuffs. Yet it is in the commonest articles of diet that prices already show the sharpest rise, and the prospect is that the movement has only begun. In the case of meats we have to deal with a phenomenon only too familiar in times of peace as well as war. In that industry, manifestly controlled by a few packers, the public is accustomed to conditions that cause hardship without adequate explanation of the cause. It receives with indifference, therefore, the news that most meat prices are soaring again, and assumes that it must get along as best it can until the government interferes vigorously to safeguard the common interest.

"But when all other provision dealers begin to follow suit, as they are now doing, asking more for potatoes, bread, coffee, sugar, and the necessities of life because the nations of Europe are taking life rather than sustaining it, the pinch becomes serious and complaint insistent. No one supposes, of course, that the food industry can escape consequences of the war when all other business is seriously interfered with. It is not plain, however, why, when exports are at a standstill, our own production abundant, and means of distribution among us unchecked, we should have to pay more for almost everything of domestic origin than we eat."

"Obviously advantage is being taken of general conditions, a form of business enterprise that is discreditable to every one concerned in it. England is considering the advisability of taking over all the crops raised, so as to insure an equitable distribution at fair prices. Her emergency as a belligerent is great, and she must do whatever is necessary to protect the interests of her people. Must we, mere onlookers, consider emergency measures to protect our people from private greed?"

POLITICS GALORE.

Janesville is having a surfeit of political speeches this week and will be ready to settle down to a tranquil peaceful consideration of the situation from now on. When the fair closes today all factions of the republican and democratic parties will have been heard with the exception of the progressive republicans and they have had their candidates through here earlier in the season. From a stand pat position the ultra progressive candidates have become defensive, quibbling and take to task even typographical errors, to try and belittle the candidacy of the conservative republican candidate, Mr. Philipp. They have all united to fight him and at the same time take a sly crack at each other. Dahl, Roethe, Hull and Hutton appear fearful of Philipp, while Utman, who is now the avowed McGovern candidate, is bitter in his denunciation. Meanwhile McGovern still takes the stand the state taxes are all right and that everyone is receiving dollar for dollar benefit from the taxes raised. Morris, LaFollette's "rubber stamp" is continuing his candidacy under his leaders supervision and Esterbrook and Bancroft are doing all they can to stir up the mud into some sort of a combination on that will benefit them personally. This is the case with the politicians have to make known their principles and they are losing no time about it.

Today marked the close of the Janesville fair. From the point of view of the visitor it was a fine exhibit, what it will be financially is not yet known but certain Janesville business men demonstrated their loyalty to the association and the crowds that packed the grounds yesterday are evidence that Janesville is proud of its new institution.

War news that is really reliable is scarcer than hens teeth. The news agencies send out the most reliable of the many reports and when they appear from different sources they have different colorings. Just what has happened over there will not be known for weeks.

Next week comes the Evansville fair. Evansville has built up a fair under adverse conditions that deserves support of every citizen in the county. Officially it is the county fair and the advance notices sent out show it will be well worth visiting.

Janesville people are hurrying home from Europe as fast as steam will bring them. Europe from now on will be merely a subject to discuss not a place to visit. The war will leave a lasting effect no matter who wins.

Pickpockets and light fingered gentry always work where there are crowds so it is not to be wondered at that some people report the loss of considerable and valuable during the rush hours at the fair.

On The Spur of The Moment

When a feller eats corn on the cob it is a mighty ticklish job. His friends most all stand back in order to give him full swing. It isn't wise to say a thing or make a funny crack. He butters it all over first, and then prepares to do his worst. He grasps it firmly at each end. He looks just like a kid, you see. Mouth open playing in high glee. And he won't condescend to say a word till it's done. Until the entire race is run. He turns it round and round. To keep the butter in its place upon the corn and on his face. Instead of on the ground. For when he starts he cannot stop. He fears the lubricant may drop. He must eat it. He gets it in his ears and hair. And there is some, despite his care, that lingers on his chin. His customary meal is ten. The million furniture is then a sight that is forlorn. When he can't keep it on his face The cob slips round from place to place. There ain't much ease. There ain't much grace. When a feller eats green corn.

Uncle Abner.
The only sure weather prediction nowadays is that it will surely rain on the day of the Sunday school picnic.

There was quite a sensation at the meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church at the home of Mrs. Anne Frick last week. Mrs. Frick made a mistake and served a plateful of Anse's poker chips instead of after dinner wafers. Elmer Jones ruined the most important part of his new Palm Beach suit the other day by sitting down on a sheet of sticky flypaper. He tore the bazooka out'n the trousers tryin' to pull the flypaper off. Hank Tumma, our red commissioner, has tore up the red about three miles out'n town and expects to leave it that way all summer. He hangs around with his team ready to pull automobiles out at $2 per. Anticipation of help a summer winter is a durned sight more pleasant than realization.

Bud Hicks says there is 100 per cent profit in frog legs that he sells. All it cost him to get 'em is his time, and that ain't worth nothing.

Some Needed Inventions.
Umbrellas that will explode and shoot a sky rocket when taken by the wrong party.
Typewriter that will run itself, so that a man can go to a ball game once in a while.
Vaudeville program that contains no jugglers or song and dance artists.
Keyhole that will jump out of the door and fasten itself onto the key automatically.
Front stairs that will not squeak at 2 a. m.
Babies that will do all of their squalling in the daytime.
Five-cent pieces that will make a noise like a silver dollar when dropped in the collection plate.

Grand Opera Nights.
The Wagner operas can't commence. With operas we have on our fence. The cats start in about midnight and sing right through till broad daylight.
We have our prima donnas and a tenor that is simply grand. Caruso never tried to get. The note that cat can reach, you bet. Our mezzos and our baritone. Can sing until they are your bones. Of course, they're sometimes jealous, too. And fight like prima donnas do. And talk about each other in a manner that seems like a sin. But still their music rings quite true. Compared to some I've listened to. Upon the grand operatic stage. Where screeching seems to be the rage. Cat operas may not be "grand." But they're the kind I understand.

Signs of the Times.
There seems to be a bumper crop of tipsters about town.
Gunboat Smith was the first American gunboat ever to meet defeat.
Tight-fitting trousers for men are the latest for fall. All right. No man nowadays carries a bank roll large enough to make a protuberance.
Mississippi Republicans are planning to hold their state convention and are looking for a place. Why not a telephone booth?
There are a lot of foreign counts hanging around Newport this season, but very few of them have anything to count.

FIRST COMPREHENSIVE MUNICIPAL SURVEY IS CALLED UNSATISFACTORY

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14.—The first complete municipal survey ever conducted in the United States threatened not to prove satisfactory enough in its conclusions for its recommendations to be adopted by the city surveyed, Springfield. Because of indifference or of prejudice among the members of its city commission, it probably will be satisfied to allow the exhaustive researches made in its social and industrial life to stand for what they may be to other cities and take only parts home to itself.
Only two sections of the survey made by the Russell Sage foundation have been published. These relate to education and public utilities service. These, appearing in the local papers, were read with interest, provoked some commendation and some criticism from those who were touched on tender spots, and released into the forenoon. But it is apparent that considerable opposition will arise to executing the recommendations.
For example, the commissioner of public property is vigorously kicking against the conclusions of the survey regarding the water and light and gas service. Springfield has a municipally owned water system and corporation owned gas and electric services. Now municipal reformers and other reformers are not famous for partiality to private utilities companies and are supposed ordinarily to favor public ownership. Yet the Russell Sage experts found that charges for water service were too high and that electric light and gas charges were reasonable. The only result so far from this publication has been to arouse the commissioner.

Your time is worth too much to you to make a personal canvass in Janesville. A few minutes will give you at a glance the offers of the best real estate firms in the city. These appear in Gazette Wants.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE BUSINESS OF LIFE.

A FRIEND of mine has recently given up smoking. "Did you do it to please your wife?" he was asked. "No," he said, "to please myself. Nobody asked me to give it up. My wife doesn't particularly object to smoking. I dropped it because I thought it was taking away from me more than it gave. I figured it out this way. Smoking keeps me a little below par. When I am below par I am not capable of fully enjoying life. The pleasure I get from feeling one hundred per cent efficient is greater than the pleasure I get from smoking. So what's the use of smoking? I thought it all over and decided I was cheating myself by giving it up."

I was cheating myself by giving it up. And I do not mean merely in the business of money getting, but in the greater business of life.

There are a great many men who are very quick to know when they are getting cheated in the business of money getting. There are comparatively few who are fast sighted enough to know when they are getting cheated in the business of life.

Any indulgence which takes away our ability to enjoy the rest of our life ought to be carefully inspected. Does it give us as much happiness as it takes away, we should ask ourselves. Leaving out the question of morality and our duty to others and judging our indulgences by that criterion alone, you will find that the man who gives it up is a successful business man.

And I do not mean merely in the business of money getting, but in the greater business of life.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Go forth into the busy world and love it, interest yourself in its life, mingle kindly with its joys and sorrows, try what you can do for men, rather than what you can make them do for you, and you will know what it is to have men yours, better than if you were their king or master.

VEAL DISHES.

The best season for veal is from April 15 until the first of July.

Filet de Veau.—Lard the filet with strips of salt pork. Brown in butter or other dripping until well browned, then lay the browned side up. Add one and a half cups of good stock, one cupful of tomato juice, a rind of a quarter of an orange, and a seasoning of salt and pepper. Cover and simmer gently for twenty minutes, then set the pan in the oven and cook a half-hour to brown the meat. Serve on a platter with cress or parsley at the end. New potatoes and peas with carrots make good vegetables to serve with it, or to cook with it.

Veal suffers in reputation because it is often put on the market too young. It should be at least six weeks old before butchering, and if well cooked and properly masticated is not hard to digest. Veal, because of its gelatinous composition, slips down too easily when being masticated, and so often it is not well divided in the mouth and consequently causes intestinal troubles.

Veal also spoils quickly and in hot weather should not be kept long. Veal with a bluish tinge is not fit to buy, it either indicates an undernourished animal or, more probably, too young for the market.

When buying veal select only that which is pinkish (ashes of roses); this will, if the flesh is firm, insure a good product.

Stuffed Flank of Veal.—Spread out the flank which has been prepared by the butcher, make a stuffing of one cup of sausage meat, two cupfuls of bread crumbs, a teaspoonful of grated onion, one teaspoonful of minced orange rind, one tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce and a good sprinkling of salt and pepper. Add one egg, put the forcemeat or stuffing in the center of the flank, roll carefully and tie in strips of muslin. Drop into a pot of boiling water to cover and cook gently for 45 minutes. Turn carefully while cooking with a wooden spoon, so that the meat is not punctured. Serve cold thinly sliced.

BLACK VELVET WILL BE POPULAR COLOR

Newest Basque of Black Velvet.—Fashion Notes by Margaret Mason.

New York, August 14.—The black basque plays as important a part in the sartorial make-up of the dainty maid who follows the fashions as the black masquerade in the sartorial make-up of the taking person who follows the dark lantern and jimmy.

Perhaps an almost invariably of black velvet, this newest basque is worn with a fluff and many founced skirt of white organdie or batiste. Often the skirt while it has an organdie foundation breaks out in founces of either tulle or chiffon. Delicate and dainty, the new basque is also used for these skirts as well as the all white and the effect of the froth of many ruffles bursting out below the close sheath of rich black velvet basque is the rather obvious discomfort of such apparel in a midsummer day.

As a concession to the heat, variations of these basques are shown developed in either black taffeta or black satin but they lack that indescribable air of chic of the velvet brand. Hence they are much favored by the fashionably elect who have long since bowed to the inexorable mandate of the code that one cannot be truly smart and comfortable all at the same time.

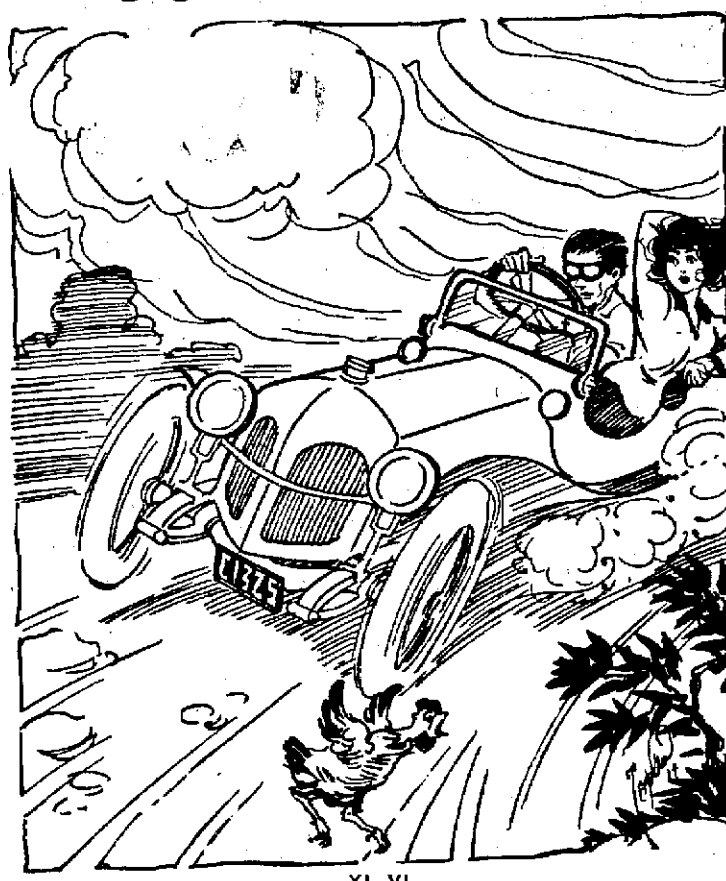

The velvet basque is always low of neck and long of sleeve and buttoned either up the front or back with visible bullet buttons. On some of them sheer roll collars of organdie or tulle frill softens the effect about the throat.

The run on velvet is by no means confined to the basque. Already the all velvet hat saucy and perky in its miniature proportions has ousted the fragile straw hat from the heads of summer beauties. So tiny and close fitting are they they seem inadequately to dispute the prophecy that large chapeaux of picture proportions are coming to the top again ere long. And yet following the immutable law that everything goes the limit before it changes and things are always worse before they are better, this August crop of wee velvet hats may be to prove the rule that they have only gotten smaller to get larger.

The parasol indeed practices being useful as well as ornamental this season of small hats and even they are now being shown in velvet. So you see the mid-summer madness for this rich and lustrous fabric has not only gone to lovely woman's head but over it as well.

There certainly is nothing halfway about fashion and from the extremity of no sleeves at all, or at least none to speak of, the long sleeve is now being the dernier cri. For afternoon and street wear they are absolutely the only permissible sleeves as the total absence of arm covering still holds good for evening toilettes it is simply a case of long sleeves or none. While the velvet and satin basques all show uncompromisingly long light sleeves of the same materials long sleeves of lace and tulle are very smart in combination with the silken bodices of many of the dressy little afternoon frocks of tulle or crepe. The lingerie gowns are all showing the long sheer sleeves now and a pretty daisy in the wearing of a circlet of tiny rosebuds or some other small artificial flowers between the

Peggy & Company

This Young Man Is Too Strenuous for Any Use at All.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Todd refused to engage in any athletic activities to call today. Peggy, uttering a weary sigh after the waking episode of yesterday, has dropped into a hammock this morning, hoping to spend protracted hours in reposeful ease. The very thought of any species of exertion affects her most unpleasantly. The thought of Mr. Todd and his athletic vigor brings over her a twinge of revulsion. She would be perfectly contented, she feels, if she didn't see him again for the space of several days.

And here he steps smilingly and briskly up the walk.

Of course it might be suggested that if Peggy didn't care to join Mr. Todd in his exertions she might tell him so and drop the matter there. Has she no will of her own that she so docilely submits to all of his breathless suggestions? Ah, it is clear that neither of our readers thoroughly understands Mr. Todd.

He is one of those ebullient natures that simply overrules all demurring. His manner is as persuasive as his highly animated tone and air would win over the most stubborn. And so Peggy finds it hard to deny him.

Today, though, she is determined, as he comes springing up the steps, to elbow and the shoulders to peep through the mist of lace or tulle. Bracelets of sparkling jewels are also worn, and the hair is in like position and many are the fortunes in gems that one fair maid is thus enabled to keep up her sleeve.

As a sort of reaction against the multi-colored strands of beads that have summer decorated the bosoms of both Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's lady, that latter personage is now going in exclusively for strands of pearls. Real or otherwise strings of pearls, real or otherwise strings of pearls, to best advantage adorn the background of the black velvet basque and contrary to the long accepted decree that pearls before breakfast were as bad as pearls before bedtime, pearls are now being proudly flaunted in the face of tradition and the rosy dawn.

The present pennant for the chaste pearl has by no means completely done for the beads of many color, for dress trimming, and as fringe and garnishment on purses and bags of silk and velvety they will fulfill a different but an equally prominent sphere this fall and winter.

Tragic Result of Jealousy.

A terrible "remedy" for jealousy was employed by a good-looking woman named Borra, the wife of an Italian tradesman living at Luno, near Lugano, recently. The couple had been married five years, and the husband, who was very jealous, made frequent scenes for which there was no reason. In desperation at last his wife obtained some vitriol and washed her face with the liquid "to spoil my beauty and keep my husband's love," she explained to the doctor. The woman's hands and face were terribly burned, and she has been taken to hospital. Her husband cannot be consoled.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

Are the contents of a boy's pockets an indication of a boy's character? The nature-loving boy will fill his pockets with bark, pebbles, anything he desires to study. The boy of mechanical turn of mind will load up with a sharp knife, pencil, wire, twine; while the laddie who carries a miscellaneous assortment of things useful and otherwise (mostly other wise), now how would he list him? As the last type of boy is to be found in most homes we will list him as just a boy—whose possibilities and capabilities are bounded only by the training he receives. And as home influence is conceded to be greater than all others combined, his chances for being a success or a failure rest heavily on the training he receives at his mother's knee.

When you look through the trouser pockets of your sons, what do you find? How do you feel? What do you think as you draw out the many different things? Is there that bond of partnership between you, the mother, and your son, that makes you willing to have your son do this? Do you understand your boy, and does he in his shrewd boyish way understand you? In ignorance, often, the rights of little children are trampled on. We tell grownups who have not yet arrived at the stage of where we can control ourselves, thus nothing of standing up and telling little Sammie or Susie what to do. Are we not their parents and have we not the right? A family of children will mainly tell—without words—just what stuff their parents are made of, for say what you will, the woman who can train a child so as to be able to take his or her place in the world, and taking it keep it, is the woman who is fashioned after the right pattern. She is the woman our grand old U. S. A. is looking for; is in urgent need of.

A child's impressionable years are the ones that count the most. (Oh! You are weary of hearing it? Look around you. Use your eyes and ears. Some people need to be told.) Those are the years when a mother should get in her telling work; those years are God-given, they should never be wasted. The woman who has around her little children and lacks the "go to" trait, who cannot shape their conduct correctly is a failure—no matter to what heights she climb along other lines. "I'd just love to go out and get a good job," tell you it takes money to run a home nowadays, "sift one of our mothers a few days back. The fact that she was holding down one of the biggest jobs in the country did not seem to appeal to her. Probably because she was not receiving coin of the realm in a little envelope each Saturday eve. But is it not the tasks that we do not receive monetary remuneration for that live long after you, that are

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am going to be married soon, and come to you for a little advice.

Will be married to the two families present.

(1) Is it all right for the groom to wear a tailored suit when the bride wears a satin dress and a veil?

(2) What kind of gloves should the groom wear? And should the bride wear long kid or silk gloves?

(3) Am going to have a very small reception for a few ants and my girl friends in the evening. Should the groom keep on his gloves throughout the evening? The bride also?

(4) Is it proper for the bride to keep on her bridal outfit or change to have my friends over because they want to see me as a bride.

(5) Are overdrapes going to be used more than white curtains, or just a few for summer? Have not the colored curtains so much and was wondering if the style would last. With thanks.

CONSTANT READER.

(1) If it is an afternoon wedding, the room does not need to wear full dress. The bride may appear in full wedding regalia. The groom should wear a long coat, black preferably, and gloves.

(2) Pearl gray or white for the groom. If the bride's dress is very elaborate she should wear long kid gloves.

(3) You can keep on your gloves, but if it is a very informal affair you will feel better without them.

(4) Keep on your bridal outfit, dearie, since your friends will be better pleased to see you in it.

(5) Many people take down their white curtains in summer. When cold

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. Chickens fat should never be thrown away. It can be used instead of butter in many cases.

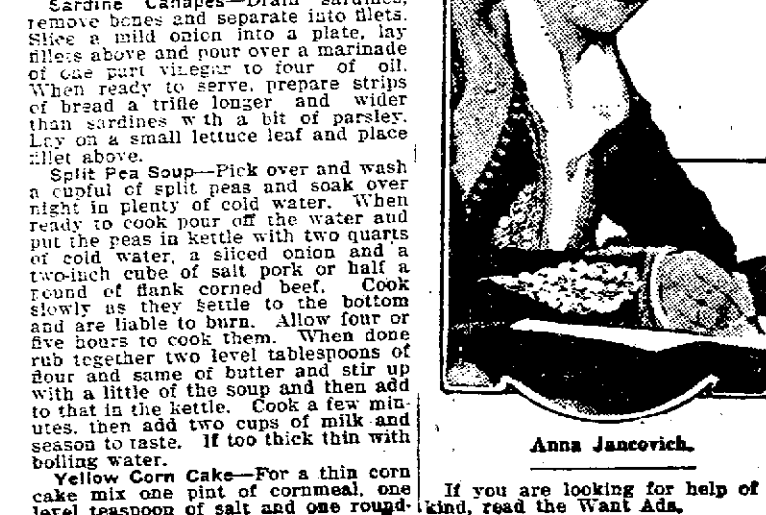

When the hands are very dirty and you are in a hurry to wash them, try a little granulated sugar with the soap. You can make a cement for mending china by mixing plaster of paris with the white of an egg.

To remove unsightly spots from a white-washed wall take a plate, lay it flat above and pour over a marinade of one part vinegar to four of oil. When ready to serve, prepare strips of bread a trifle longer and wider than sardines with a bit of parsley. Lay on a small lettuce leaf and place it above.

Sardine Canapes.—Drain sardines, remove bones and separate into fillets. Slice a mild onion into a plate, lay it flat above and pour over a marinade of one part vinegar to four of oil. When ready to serve, prepare strips of bread a trifle longer and wider than sardines with a bit of parsley. Lay on a small lettuce leaf and place it above.

Split Pea Soup.—Pick over and wash a cupful of split peas and soak over night in plenty of cold water. Fine Feathers

By WEBSTER DENISON

"Delighted, I'm sure," he answered with an attempt at cordiality. "There'll be plenty of room for her in the town."

He was as good as his word. He led Mrs. Collins to the back of the huge eight-passenger car, assisted Jane to the front seat and ordered the chauffeur to await his return.

"I'm going to run it myself," he told Jane. "There aren't many policemen over here and I like a little excitement once in a while. It won't interfere with our talk."

He threw down the clutch and opened the muffler, sending the big machine off with a chug and a jump. They reached the main road and the car settled down into the steady but exhilarating gait of a trained thoroughbred. Brand looked at his guest.

"It was mighty fine of you to send that note," he said. "Some women wouldn't; they would have misunderstood me, but you're too big for that and I admire you for it. You know, I was so eager to help Bob, and now that I've seen you I want to help you, too. I've got a wife and three children, Mrs. Reynolds, and all of the necessities and some of the luxuries have made our home life very beautiful. There's no reason why yours and Bob's shouldn't be the same if we can get some of those distorted notions out of his head. Why, he seems to think I'm one of the forty thieves, but I'd like to see him tell Mrs. Brand that sort of thing."

"I suppose your wife has just everything in the world, hasn't she?"

"Everything I can give her. She would attend to that if I didn't. She can make me do anything. Sometimes when I think I'm a big man with big opinions, I find myself jumping through the hoop, lying down and rolling over and playing dead when it comes to the real issue."

"She must be a very fascinating woman. I wish I knew her."

"I intend you shall know her. She is not only fascinating, to my mind, but she's also very sensible, and I think that on both those scores you would be very congenial."

Brand sent the car ahead at a faster clip. Mrs. Collins, seated in the rear of the deep tonneau, and occupied chiefly in retaining possession of her ponderous headpiece, had no opportunity to join in or even hear the conversation of the two in front. The millionaire glanced back and smiled. There was a clear stretch of road ahead. He turned to Jane.

"Now, Mrs. Reynolds," he began, let's get down to business. You heard our talk about the dam and the money?"

"Every word of it."

"And you believe everything I said—because it's true, isn't it?"

"I know it's true."

"Good. Here's the idea. We've got to make Bob take this money. Your part of the job is to bring him to his senses and my part of it is to hand over the cash. Now, there's no hurry. It's going to take a long time to build this dam. You've got six weeks before we deliver the first order. If you're as smart as Mrs. Brand and as sensible as I think you are, you'll move out of that little bungalow back there before the six weeks are over. All you have to do is to guide him—gradually, but firmly. And I will help you. If you say the word, we'll form a little company right here, and as a working member of the company you will be entitled to some remuneration. This is merely a fair business view of it. While my chief motive in coming to Bob was to help him out of the rut, I'm not trying to conceal the fact that his gain is also my company's gain. If you become a party to this plan to make him listen to reason, you are entitled to some reward whether we are successful or not, and so, Mrs. Reynolds, I'm going to sort of put you on the payroll. We'll give Bob a little glimpse of a few comforts without letting him know anything about it."

Jane laughed, but she blushed in spite of herself. Brand's words were very clear and the prospects they presented very alluring. Inwardly, however, she had grave doubts about the propriety of accepting money from a man who was almost a stranger, even if it were for services rendered. But she made no avowal of refusal. The speeding auto, the immediate exhilaration, the thought of gratification of a few desires and escape from her impecunious plight stirred up the bacteria of self-indulgence that had awakened and spread poison throughout the whole structure of her character. Brand watched her; he read the mental struggle and he struck home.

"Why, if you think it isn't right for you to accept any reward, just regard it in the nature of an advance. We are sure to succeed and then when you have the forty thousand, you can reimburse me, if you want, for the few favors extended now. We'll have that understanding."

Forty thousand dollars! Forty thousand dollars! Forty thousand! The figures ran in wild frolic through her brain and danced before her eyes. The bill boards, as they flashed past, were emblazoned with them. She looked ahead and rows of figures were stretched across the road. The car ran through them and over them, but everywhere they sprang up and leered and beckoned. Forty thousand dollars! And she hadn't had forty dollars of her own in six months. Well, she wasn't going to be a fool any longer. Brand knew the way. His way would be her way. She turned to him quickly.

"I'll do anything that you think best to make Bob understand," she said.

"Fine!" he exclaimed. "Now I can see the battle won."

They rode on in silence for several minutes. At length Jane said:

"But I don't feel entirely comfortable about it yet. I'm even worrying about this auto ride—the fact that I'm doing something without Bob's knowledge. He is so good to me and so willing to do everything he can, or thinks he can, that occasionally I feel that I ought to be content; content to share whatever he does, or has, or plans. But, then, I just can't, that's all. If I wasn't sure that I was working for him, helping him where he won't help himself, I would despise myself. But I am helping him, I know. The end justifies the means, and he can't blame me in the end, can he?"

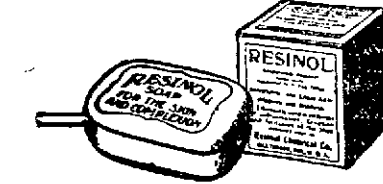

"Certainly not," responded the millionaire. He leaned over and touched a lever that sent his big machine ahead still faster.

Slow music and moonlight are a subconscious aid to lovers. Just so the quickening speed of a big automobile thrills, accelerates and enhances a cause like Brand's. He was a practical

The patient may look well, but in reality is fast losing strength by continued night sweats, fever, and cough. These symptoms should be checked as quickly as possible. Eckman's Alternative is the most effective remedy for lung trouble and it has brought about many complete recoveries. Read this case:

380 W. 32nd St., New York.

"Gentlemen: I am writing you this testimonial that others may know what your Alternative has done for me. Since I was a very young woman, I was a sufferer from Bronchitis. I tried doctor after doctor, getting little or no benefit. Finally I had night sweats, weak spells and lost rapidly in weight and my doctor told me if they were not checked I would have Lung Trouble. Miss Mary Korhammer, who is a friend of mine, recovered after taking your Alternative and insisted that I try it. I am now after two years, perfectly well, strong and healthy."

CHAPTER VIII.

The Great American Dollar.

Jane always had the first chance at the mail in their home. Bob left before the early delivery. He would have just as readily considered breaking into a letter box as he would opening anything addressed to her. So she had no fear on that score. If Brand chose to send her any communication concerning their business affairs she could rest doubly assured that her husband would have no knowledge of it. But there were other letters that it was just as well to keep from Bob. She never let herself believe that she was deceiving him. It was merely that she did not want to worry him with the petty details of the household cares. Tradersmen were so exacting and insistent about having the bills paid promptly and sometimes, in her plan of management, she found it convenient to let them wait. Jane knew that her husband was opposed to such tactics, but what could a woman with such a meager income as hers do? If the financing of the home was to be left to her—and Bob believed that was a woman's right—she was the one to decide about the "economics" and the necessary expediency in meeting debts.

Economy is a word that most women define in a very liberal sense. There are some who are more frugal than others and who have an inherent faculty of making a little money go a long ways. Jane considered herself of this class, but in reality her tastes and instincts were of the opposite order. She was not extravagant, for that would have been impossible, but her funds were so limited that "saving" from the household expenses simply meant postponing the inevitable. Reynolds had just about enough to make both ends meet and so, usually, when Jane "economized" she robbed Peter to pay Paul. It was becoming harder and harder, consequently, to make the debit and the credit sides of her account balance. That was the first serious example of her failure. That horrid old butcher had insisted that in exchange for his chops, steaks and soup bones he was entitled to the equivalent and something more in regular American money. If it hadn't been for his greediness, she told herself, Bob would have been none the wiser and she would have come out all right in the end. Just exactly how, she did not attempt to explain.

Well, the butcher's underhanded tactics hadn't done him any good! He had his money, but he had lost a customer and her bill was always bigger than Mrs. Collins'.

"Delighted, I'm Sure."

man and didn't overlook any of these little fine points. He heard the girl at his side draw a deep breath.

"That is just it, Mrs. Reynolds," he argued. "Helping him where he won't help himself. Your husband is capable enough and broad enough, but he's on the wrong track. He is like the big mogul engine at the head of a through express, stalled at a crossing. It is there, the ability to rush ahead, but the road is clogged by the ponderous baggage of his own devious ideas; his foolish standard of morality, or whatever he calls it. You must be the switchman who clears the track. You must show him the way and then he will plunge forward."

"Why, I tell you at school he was a leader. He showed the way and was followed. If anybody had said: 'In five years Reynolds will be earning thirteen hundred dollars a year and Brand, fifty thousand,' he would have

Dinner Stories

For four entire hours had the lady remained in the shop. She had visited every department and worried the majority of the salesmen without spending a penny.

Toward the close of the afternoon one of the salesmen, feeling somewhat exasperated, ventured to make a mild protest.

"Madam," he asked sweetly, "are you shopping here?"

The lady looked surprised, but not by any means annoyed.

"Certainly," she replied. "But what else should I be doing?"

For a moment the salesman hesitated, then blurted out:

"Well, madam, I thought perhaps you might be taking an inventory."

Then the lady melted away among the shadows of the door.

A bachelor of considerable wealth was much sought after by many of the most charming young women of the town.

Minnie Rivers, a very pretty maiden, was sure she had brought him almost to the point of a proposal.

What Causes Twilight?

Owing to the fact that the earth has an atmosphere, daylight does not disappear whenever the sun sinks below the horizon. The rays of the sun still strike the upper regions of our atmosphere, and thus we have twilight and the gradual darkening of the sky and disappearance of day light.
